DESCRIPTION:

December 17 Talking With Kids About Differences

This workshop takes a broad view of talking with kids about differences between people. These conversations acknowledge the differences that are around us and form the foundation for open and honest communication between adults and children.

This session for parents and caregivers will address the following topics:

What are social identities?

What are isms?

What are stereotypes and how do they create bias?

Why should I talk about differences?

How should I talk about differences?

Extension Extras for Professionals is a collection of free online series of childcare workshops that provides guidance for early childhood professionals and caregivers of young children. Trainings are eligible for MIRegistry hours.

HOW TO REGISTER:
